

MusicRoom program overview

Benefits to schools

Our programs deliver

Our programs are based on four key learning principles

- Prepare and commit
- Problem solve and progress
- Patience and respect play a part
- Play and have fun.

Flexible and adaptable

We work with you and parents to schedule lessons. We teach in small groups or individual lessons as best fits a child's learning style. Our lessons can be

- At school as part of your day
- After school at school
- At home.

We teach a range of instruments, focusing on establishing good basics before referring students to more specialist teachers. These include

- Guitar/ukulele
- Drums/percussion
- Keyboard/piano
- Recorder
- Voice
- Brass/Woodwind
- Classroom music appreciation/theory.

Schools enjoy our programs

Your school will benefit by

- Free ensembles as student numbers grow
- Performance opportunities that showcase the skills of the students in their community
- Networking with community groups such as brass and concert bands, and choirs to broaden the reach of your music programs.

Admin on us

There is no cost to your school for a MusicRoom program. All we need is a teaching space. We

- Bill the parents direct
- Run our timetables and manage parent enquiries in consultation with you
- Work with you to accommodate changes due to events at your school
- Organise music, instruments and teaching materials.

About the owner – Kathy Clark

I am building a network of passionate, committed musicians to provide affordable and accessible music to rural New Zealand communities.

My business started in 2015 in the Kaipara region of north-west Auckland. In 2017, I relocated to Mataroa, near Taihape, leaving my Auckland based students in the capable hands of local music educators. Each week my tutors and I travel to work with some amazing young musicians.

I have been providing itinerant music tuition for more than 30 years through schools and bands in Australia and from 2009, in New Zealand.

From its inception in 2013 until mid-2017, I was a lead tutor/administrator and in 2016, the conductor of the North Shore Brass Academy Understudies learners program.

I am currently working with the Waimarino Brass Band to establish a junior band program for the Ruapehu district.
